SENIOR CLASS POEM

Within these old loved walls we've spent,
Four years—dear years of strife and song;
And now we part with but an hour
In which to jest, or heal a wrong.

Four happy years have come and gone. And we have all together been: Four kindly years have, like a hand. Made of us better women, men.

And now each takes a separate road

That leads across the world's worn street;
So, artists. poets, statesmen, all,

Let's hope that we again may meet.

-VIRGINIA IVEY.

The Autobiography of Mr. Senior Class

I was born Wednesday, September 5, 1928. A.D., at Claremont High School. Hickory, North Carolina. I distinctly remember the confusion I caused: I can still see, as if it were but yesterday, the distracted doctors and nurses rushing about ministering unto me, while outside the rain came down in torrents. I was, indeed, an "infant, mewling and puking in the nurse's arms." I kicked, I squirmed, and I squalled—in fact, I was almost convinced that I would never become accustomed to my surroundings. I even thought at times that perhaps I had been born "thirty years too soon." At last, however, I became inured to life as it existed and was reconciled to my fate. But, alas! I had made a bad reputation and was christened Freshman.

Freshman! How I hated the name! As time passed, I grew more and more determined to gain a more complimentary one. When still quite a young lad I read a story of the admirable George Washington. With this great hero as my model I strove to conceal behind a mask of learning every trait which suggested the name Freshman. Thus I was in part like George Washington and in part like Freshman: therefore, I was given the name of Sophomore, meaning wise and foolish. (The wise referred to Mr. Washington, of course, not to me.)

Only half satisfied I worked harder than ever to earn a worthier name, keeping ever before me the example of George Washington. After many days of labor I was rewarded with the name of Junior, meaning younger. (Intimating, I suppose, that I was a young Washington.)

Under my new name I progressed rapidly. I also became closely acquainted with a Band of Pirates, who were at that time searching among a lot of old scrolls for a map showing where they might find the chest of Knowledge. They had travelled much, and conversation with them was highly educational. When the time came for them to leave, I was indeed sorry to part with them. To commemorate our friendship I gave a farewell banquet for them. using decorations in keeping with the age of Washington. When they left, they conferred upon me the name of Senior.

As the little boy grew to resemble the Great Stone Face, I. Senior Class, have grown to resemble Washington—polite, truthful, and wise. Now "life's autumn past, I stand on winter's verge"; my life with its troubles lies behind, but I have gained a name which is in itself an honor to me. When inevitable death has come, will the hereafter be as kind to Mr. Senior Class?

N. M. NEWTON AND G. L. LYNCH.

Senior Class Prophecy

One evening as I sat before my fire thinking of something to do, my mind went back to those pleasant days in old Hickory High. Suddenly my television phone rang. On answering it I saw the anxious face of John Regan. "Come to my apartment quick," he said. "I've something to show you." Immediately he hung up, and I rushed over. He met me at the door and took me to a back room where a weird looking machine stood in the middle of the floor.

"In this," he began, "we can sail out in space for any number of years. We can go to 1950 if we care to. Why, for ten years I've studied electric waves and finally I've built this! It will bring before us all we want to see of the future; and tonight we will try, for the first experiment, to see what our graduating class of high school will be doing in 1950. It may cost our lives, but shall we?"

"Let's do," I replied. "I think I need some excitement."

John locked all the doors; then he threw a large switch and I heard the hum of electricity. We strapped ourselves in. "Here we go," he shouted. We shot up into space; John turned the dial to 1940, and on the screen in front of us appeared the world in turmoil, strife, and war.

"Turn on," I shouted. "Don't stop!" He turned to 1950, and we sailed over New York for the beginning of our journey,

We heard the newsboys shouting about the merger of all the papers in the United States headed by G. L. Lynch and Louis Gibbs. On the screen at Wilfong's Theater flashed several scenes from the latest all-talking picture, "Too True," starring Mary Ramseur and Paul Burns. At the corner of Fifty-third Street and 107 West Avenue stood a filling station owned by Ernest Barger. He was waiting on two girls in a handsome car. Upon closer observation we saw Misses Faye and Mae Deal, who were starting on a trip across the continent to the Pacific coast in company of Parks Harris and Paul Hunt.

Our machine soared over the country, and in a quiet little valley we saw X. M. Newton feeding chickens, while Annie Mae Miller was washing dishes and tending to three adorable children that were hanging to her apron.

We passed over our own little town of Hickory; there Mary Elliott Henderson was supervising the interior decorating of the new auditorium built by Chalmers Fox, president of the Southern Public Utilities Company. Brooks Moser, manager, announced that they would open the house with a concert by the famous symphony orchestra conducted by Miss Melba Yount. Later, he stated, they hope to bring to this city the "Exile Quartette," composed of the noted singers Louise Wyant, Margaret Whitner, Pauline Goodman, and Margaret Suggs.

Across the street stood the Lindsay Mortimer Shuford Memorial Hospital with Dr. Ray Lockhart, head physician, and Mildred Hammond and Elizabeth Reid, head nurses. Donald Applegate was owner of the Cash & Carry Company with Maude Gordon as his secretary. Thomas Deal had been promoted to general manager of the firm of Ingold & Bradam, owned by Harry Ingold and James Bradam, merchants of ladies' ready-to-wear. Two of their sales ladies, Margaret Payne and Ada Lynch, had just sold $1,000,000 worth of ladies' coats to Earl Shuford, of Paris.

Sam Stroup was following the footsteps of his father by addressing the students of Claremont High. He spoke on the subject of "Gambling," by the suggestion of R. A. Throneburgh, principal of the school. Cordula Lanier was Dean of the Girls at Lenoir Rhyne College. Claude Bruton has just received patents on his latest model of wingless aeroplane, designed to fly 600 miles an hour,

We flew on, and at Chicago we saw George Sullivan and Stanley Barger in a racer trying for the world's speed record. John Dixon Lawrence and Robert Friday had just received the congratulations of Mayor Elwood Carpenter for winning the Chicago Loop tennis title.

At the corner of Michigan Boulevard and Chicago Avenue, Rebecca DeLane, girls' basketball coach at Northwestern, nearly wrecked her Auburn sport car in a collision with an ambulance driven by Lawrence Frye, who was carrying Theresa Callanan and her husband, Ruffin Wooten, to the Alfred Raby Clinic after a fall from a high wire upon which they had been performing. Motorcycle Policeman Guy Barringer was in front clearing the way.

From Chicago we struck the Mississippi River at St. Louis. There Carl Boliek was collecting tolls from Henry Reese and Albert Eckard. Down below on the broad river, Maude Scruggs and Wilma Clay were rowing to New Orleans in order to win a bet from Hugh D'Anna.

Outside of Galveston, Texas, we saw the 1,000,000-acre ranch owned by Clyde Hall. His cowhands, Glenn Holder, Everette Propst and Wilfred Stevenson were finishing the annual roundup. We continued our journey, and in Old Mexico we saw a rescue party, headed by Leon Matlock and George Hall, hunting for Mildred Harris and Mary Bivins who had crashed in their plane on the way to Mexico City. Later they were rescued by James Troutman and Eugene White.

Back to Colorado we flew in the space machine. There Clyde Frye was completing the Hoover Dam, which was destroyed in 1940. At Reno we heard the decision of Judge Maurice Seaboch as he granted divorce to Mary Shuford, a noted screen actress, and her husband, James Campbell. At the Grand Canyon, Georgia Boyd was doing her daring parachute leap from the canyon wall. In Washington a party of young women, Barbara Browne, Virginia Ivey, and friends led by Cloyd Smith, were climbing Mount Ranier.

Down the California shore we sped to Hollywood, where the filming of a new picture, co-starring George Poovey and Virginia Flowers, was in progress; the famous dancing trio, Doris Seaboch, Martha Kiser, and Mary Mauney, were doing their part in the same production.

Putting out to sea from Los Angeles was the yacht of Miss Julia Walker and friends, Dorothy Webb and Eva Nell Poovey, on a trip to the Bermuda Islands. Arnold Johnson, Miss Walker's captain and fiancee, was relieved from duty, due to a broken arm received in rescuing Sarah Wood from a shark.

About one hundred miles out from Los Angeles we spied a tiny sailboat which held Cora Lee Arrowood, Kathryn Kaylor, and Edna Mae Spencer. They had started across the Pacific but, due to lack of supplies, were being picked up by one of the ships of the Everette Eckard Line, commanded by Eiot Sigmon. On and on at a terrific rate of speed. Across the ocean in a second. Always hovering like an autogyro over the places we wished to visit.

In Australia we happened to find Alma Cloer and Elizabeth Campbell hunting kangaroos on the estate of Miss Emma Bell Bolch.

Swiftly John moved the dials, and the electric waves carried us to a remote part of New Guiana, where Lillian Lock was teaching A B C's to the natives as part of her missionary work.

At Manila, the banquet in honor of Paul Whitener, governor-elect of the Philippine Islands, was inprogress; his hostess, Miss Jessie Perkins, had arranged for this delightful occasion a special program rendered by Bess Rankin and Annie Laura White, skilled comic artists.

In India we saw Frederic Marshall returning from a hunt for lost treasure, supposed to have been dropped in the Bay of Calcutta by Faye Huffman. His diver, Donald Miller, had searched for three days with no results.

In the Indian Desert, we chanced upon Howard Payne, running as hard as he could after a camel, that had probably thrown him. About a mile away we heard Elizabeth Abee and Hazel Brittain nearly bursting their sides with laughter at Howard's predicament; it seemed very funny to them 'till their saddle strap broke and spilled them in the sand.

On to Moscow. There that wonderful architect, Ola Miller, was building the Russian Embassy for Diplomat Charles Stepp.

Over France we came like a flash to the gay city of Paris. There Nan Norman, beauty expert, was explaining the latest methods to her new partner, Miss Evelyn Cline.

At Madrid we attended the Grand Opera starring Mary Herman, who was being ably assisted in her program by Lucille Ivey. In the audience we recognized Margaret Boyd and Kathleen Carpenter.

Down over Africa we sped, and in one of the darkest jungles we found Ethel Miller conducting a party studying wild life. Suddenly a lion appeared on the scene and the members scattered. Johnsie Rhodes dived for a hollow log; Azzline Eckerd gained a tree and was keeping the lion off with a club; while Charlotte Starnes was breaking the world's record in a dash to the river. Joe Howard finally gathered his wits enough to grab his gun but could not shoot at it. Bob Poovey tore a limb from a tree, sneaked up behind the lion, and hit him over the head; Joe finally pulled the trigger and ended it all.

Over the Atlantic Ocean we went and at Key West we saw Lucille Miller motoring out to her estate. At Miami, Geraldine Cline won the All-American Woman's Motorboat race. Her promoter, Lucille Poovey, seemed very happy over the results.

At Lake Okechobee, Mary Mae Huffman and Helen Dietz Stepp were fishing in a small boat and taking life easy. Veda White and Lois Spencer were entering an endurance swimmers' contest at Jacksonville.

We were nearly home when on the screen flashed Glein Suther, President of the United States, making a speech in memory of that great inventor, Edison. In honor of him he had arranged to have all the electricity in the United States cut off for one minute,

"If he does this our wave will be broken," John cried. "We'll be marooned here in space till 1950! He must not do it. We've got to get back!"

Click! Our screen went blank. "We're here now," said John. "We can't get back; our waves are broken. Here we stay 'till time overtakes us."

-JULIAN WHITENER.

Last Will and Testament

We, the Senior class, of nineteen hundred and thirty-two, do hereby thrust upon the lower classmen the following:

ARTICLE I

To the Juniors we leave our much-coveted title, hoping that they will uphold our worthy example.

ARTICLE II

We do will and bequeath to the other classes of Hickory High School our irreproachable conduct and our love for knowledge

ARTICLE III

Upon the faculty, we do hereby bestow our privilege of taking State Senior Tests, hoping they will pass.

ARTICLE IV

INDIVIDUALS

- I, Cora Lee Arrowood, bequeath my infinite amount of knowledge to Aileen Benfield.
- To Alice Moretz, Hazel Brittain leaves all her Cleopatric wiles. May they cure her of insomnia!
- I, Chalmers Fox, do not will my love for a "little girl" to anyone, but may "Red" Link enjoy my Senior privilege of going uptown during school hours.

Maude Gordon desires that Jimmie Lee Cottle might have her good disposition.

Junior Class History

No score and three years ago came into this school a new class, known as the class of '33, whose history it is my duty to set forth here.

In its freshman year this class was like other freshman classes except for its being a few shades greener. Many of us wished we were back in dear old grammar school, where we had been "big shots" instead of nobodies. Another reason for unhappiness was that the old American custom of sophomores initiating freshmen had not died out, as it seems to have done now.

By the time we had become sophomores this distaste for our surroundings had worn off, and life had become brighter. We were a care-free bunch, without the troubles of freshmen or the responsibilities of juniors or seniors.

Our class, which is the largest junior class in the school's history because of reënforcements from West Hickory and Highland, feels that this is the happiest of any year we have yet spent. Though we have had to work harder on the puzzling intricacies of geometry, French, physics, chemistry, and the like, we have had our good times, and one of the best of these times, we believe, will be the Junior-Senior Banquet.

We have done our best to uphold the school spirit athletically and scholastically, and in our own opinions, at least, are the best class Hickory High School has seen in a long time.

Sophomore Class History

On September 4; 1930, one hundred and sixty-nine Freshmen, some small, some tall; some fat, and some lean, started up the hill to Claremont Central High School. We soon learned that this was indeed a climb in more ways than one.

After roaming around the building, through the halls: going in the wrong rooms, and asking silly questions, we finally learned that we had to disregard the jeers and looks of scorn given to us by the upperclassmen, especially the Sophomores, who were our chief persecutors: We realized that all this was just a small part of the initiation into the regular routine of high school life.

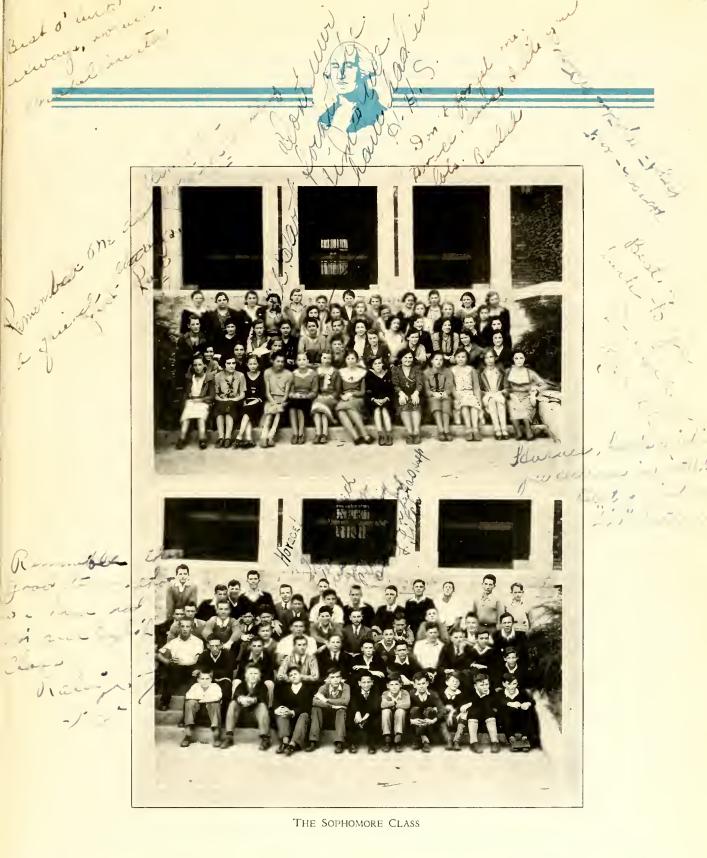

We soon found ourselves working and striving to reach that high rank—Sophomore, which the greater part of us were fortunate enough to obtain. These and a few others who have been added to our list this year, make up the Sophomore class of 1931-32; which is a class ever-willing, ever-striving, ever-pressing forward.

Quite a few of our members have gone out for athletics and other worth-while activities, two making-the varsity football team and several-making the squad. Still others have done their bit by attaining the honor roll each month.

Even though we have to face the facts now, that this is our last year of "wisdom," the class of "34 is not one to be left behind or forgotten. Our greater deeds are yet to be achieved. We are still climbing, and we intend to reach the top! Just wait and watch us!

Freshman Class History

From many different buildings we Freshmen came to take up our work in Hickory High School. When we first started coming here last September, everything seemed so different; and we were all, we'll have to admit, just a wee bit frightened because the building was so large and there were so many people who bumped into us, stepped on our toes, and laughed when we went to the wrong classroom. Then, too, we stood in awe of the Faculty, who looked as if they knew so very much more than anyone else.

However, after almost a year in Hickory High School we find that it's really quite a lot of fun, that the students are a jolly bunch, and that the teachers are awfully nice about explaining things that one simply can't understand otherwise. We don't think we're so insignificant or ignorant after all. In fact, we think that this is a fine Freshman class and will be a credit to Hickory High! What do you think?

Hi-Y Club

ROBERT FRIDAY
SAM STROUP
THOMAS BOGLE Secretary and Treasurer
LEON MATLOCK
GEORGE SULLIVAN AND JOHN T. REGAN Sergeants-at-Arms

The Hi-Y Club was organized to create, maintain, and extend throughout the school and community high standards of Christian character, and to promote clean living, clean speech, clean athletics, and clean scholarship.

Although having a lower enrollment than that of the preceding year, the Hi-Y Club of 1931-'32 broke all its records in attendance. Of forty members, at least thirty attended every meeting. The aim of this school term is the building of a Hi-Y cabin. In order to do this a drive for donations has been begun, contributions being made by the business men of the city and the members.

The members say that this year has been the greatest of the club's existence, and that they have all learned the twofold purpose of their club.

Wigs and Masque Club

Mrs. Vena Little Goode		(())	Director
George Sullivan		88	President
Paul Burns		Business	Manager

The Wigs and Masque Club was organized for the purpose of giving the students interested in dramatics an opportunity to develop their talent, if any, and to learn the art of stage make-up and of play-directing.

Several successful plays have been presented; we feel confident that under Mrs. Goode's direction much more will be achieved.

Junior-Senior Banquet

Climaxing the school year 1930-'31 was the annual Junior-Senior Banquet, held on May 1, 1931, in the high school gymnaisum, which was effectively decorated in pink and green—this color scheme also being carried out in the attractive programs and favors.

Mary Vera Mauney, president of the junior class and toastmistress for the occasion, cordially welcomed all the guests to her Southern plantation, the scene of the dinner. Between the courses of the "country style" dinner, which was served by twenty-one freshman girls dressed as belles of old colonial days, toasts were made to the Successful Planters of 1931, the Prospective Farmers of 1932, and the Faithful Overseers. At the conclusion of the meal, delightful favors were distributed by Paul Whitener and John Regan, impersonating Amos 'n Andy.

After the banquet everyone assembled in the auditorium to elect a May Queen. Doris Bryan was crowned Queen and Mary Mauney, Maid of Honor. Having returned to the gymnasium the guests participated in the first dance ever given in the high school. Throughout the evening music was furnished by the Dixie Syncopators, a negro orchestra.

Athletic Banquet

The Hickory High School Athletic Banquet, held Friday night, May 18, 1931, in the high school building, with a dance following at the country club, was the culmination of a highly successful athletic season in seven sports. Mr. R. W. Carver was the toastmaster.

The dining room was decorated with the school colors—garnet and gold—and the tables were laid with numerous favors that might have been applied to some form of athletics.

After making a brief talk, Coach Shores awarded letters to football, bas-ketball, and baseball boys.

Coach K. V. Walling presented letters to the boxing team, track team, and the girls' basketball team.

Among the speakers of the evening were the Reverend John R. Hay, Dr. J. H. Shuford, and Professor W. E. Boyden.

This delightful banquet was brought to a close by everyone singing "Hickory Will Shine Tonight."

Junior Play

On Friday night, March 13, 1931, the high school auditorium was the scene of a three-act comedy, "Charley's Aunt," presented by the class of '32 to raise funds for the annual Junior-Senior Banquet.

The play treats of the story of college life in England, and the manner in which it was rendered would have done credit to professionals. Miss Virginia Barron assisted Mr. W. E. Boyden in the direction of this comic play.

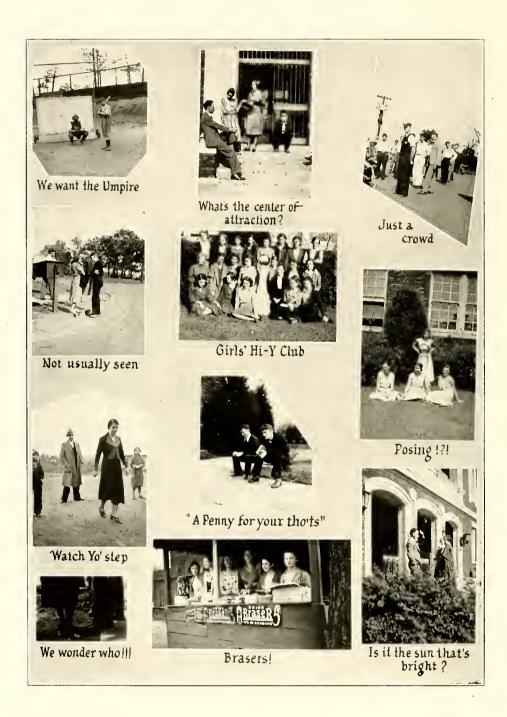

The star of the evening, "Mike" Whitener as "Charley's Aunt," was ably supported by the cast, which consisted of George Sullivan, Chalmers Fox, Paul Burns, Earl Shuford, N. M. Newton, Mary E. Henderson, Virginia Flowers, Evelyn Cline, and Lillian Lock.

Miss Helen Warlick, Coach K. V. Walling, and Floyd Warren added a great deal to the program by rendering delightful music between the acts.

CHAMPIONS OF THE SOUTH PIEDMONT CONFERENCE

R. M. SHORES, Coach

THE SCHEDULE AND RESULTS

The season opened on September 25 with Newton. According to established custom the "Red Devils" took the small end of a 29 to 0 score.

On October 2 the Tornadoes won their second conference game from Belmont by the score of 41 to 0.

The Tornadoes traveled to Rutherfordton-Spindale on October 7. The opponents scored early in the first quarter and held our boys scoreless until the last quarter. The Tornadoes won, 20 to 6.

Playing on a field of mud the Red Tornadoes downed the Lincolnton eleven on October 9 by the score of 7 to 0.

On October 16 the Tornadoes traveled to Charlotte to lose by the score of 20 to 0. R. D. Bivens suffered a broken leg near the end of the game.

The third conference game was on October 23. Although the Monroe crew was defeated, 13 to 0, it cost the school the services of Captain Bob Poovey, whose leg was broken in the second quarter.

Filled with a desire of revenge the Tornadoes invaded Gaffney, S. C., October 30, only to meet bitter defeat, 26 to 7. Paul Whitener scored for Hickory late in the last quarter.

Lexington invaded the Tornado camp November 6 to be defeated 6 to 0, in one of the most ragged games ever played on the home field.

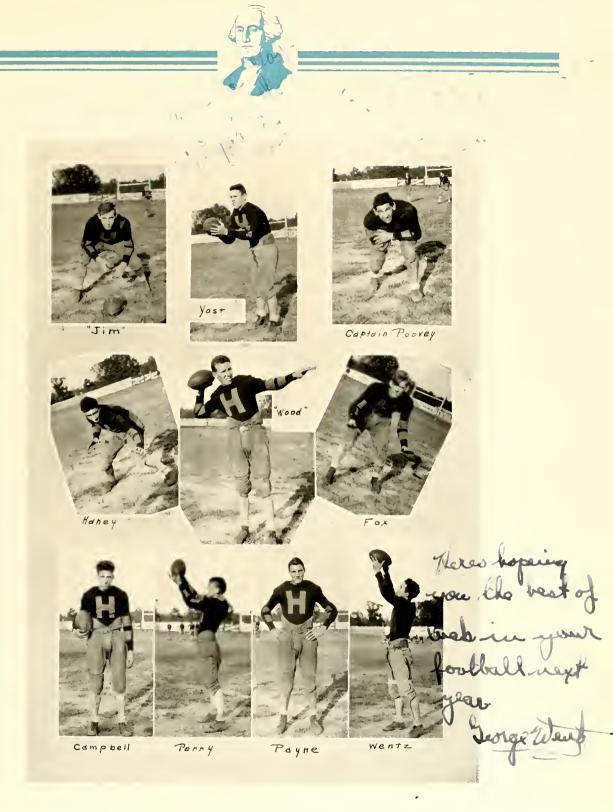

Lenoir journeyed to Hickory November 13, only to lose in a fast game, 26 to 0.

In one of the best games of the season the Red Tornadoes of Hickory High defeated the Golden Tornadoes of Forest City by the score of 7 to 0, on November 19.

On November 25 our boys downed the Concord Spiders, 47 to 12 to win the South Piedmont Conference Championship. This game ended the season.

During the 1931 season our boys made many fine records. Jimmie Mullins led the batters with a .397, while the batting average of the team was .329. Nathan Hovis, Elwood Perry, and Donald Applegate turned in a perfect fielding average. Johnnie Mackorell hit four home runs, and Forest Short led the base-stealers with a total of 23. Ralph Dale pitched the team to six victories and no defeats.

The Red Tornadoes were forced to second place in the conference standing due to a defeat by Belmont.

Although the tennis team won only three of the eleven matches during 1931, the season should not be counted a failure. The boys played several of the outstanding teams in the state. They also met the strong team from the Darlington School for Boys. Rome. Ga., which holds the Southern Championship for Preparatory Schools. Captain Bob Friday was the leading scorer.

Bob Friday was again elected to captain the team; Charles Crane was named alternate captain, and Dick Lawrence, business manager.
